

Belgian sentries guard German bridges. This particular fighting man of the forces of King Albert is patrolling the Rhine bridge at Dusseldorf, in the territory recently taken over by the allies. The barbed wire is held in readiness to construct barricades.

Underwood & Underwood

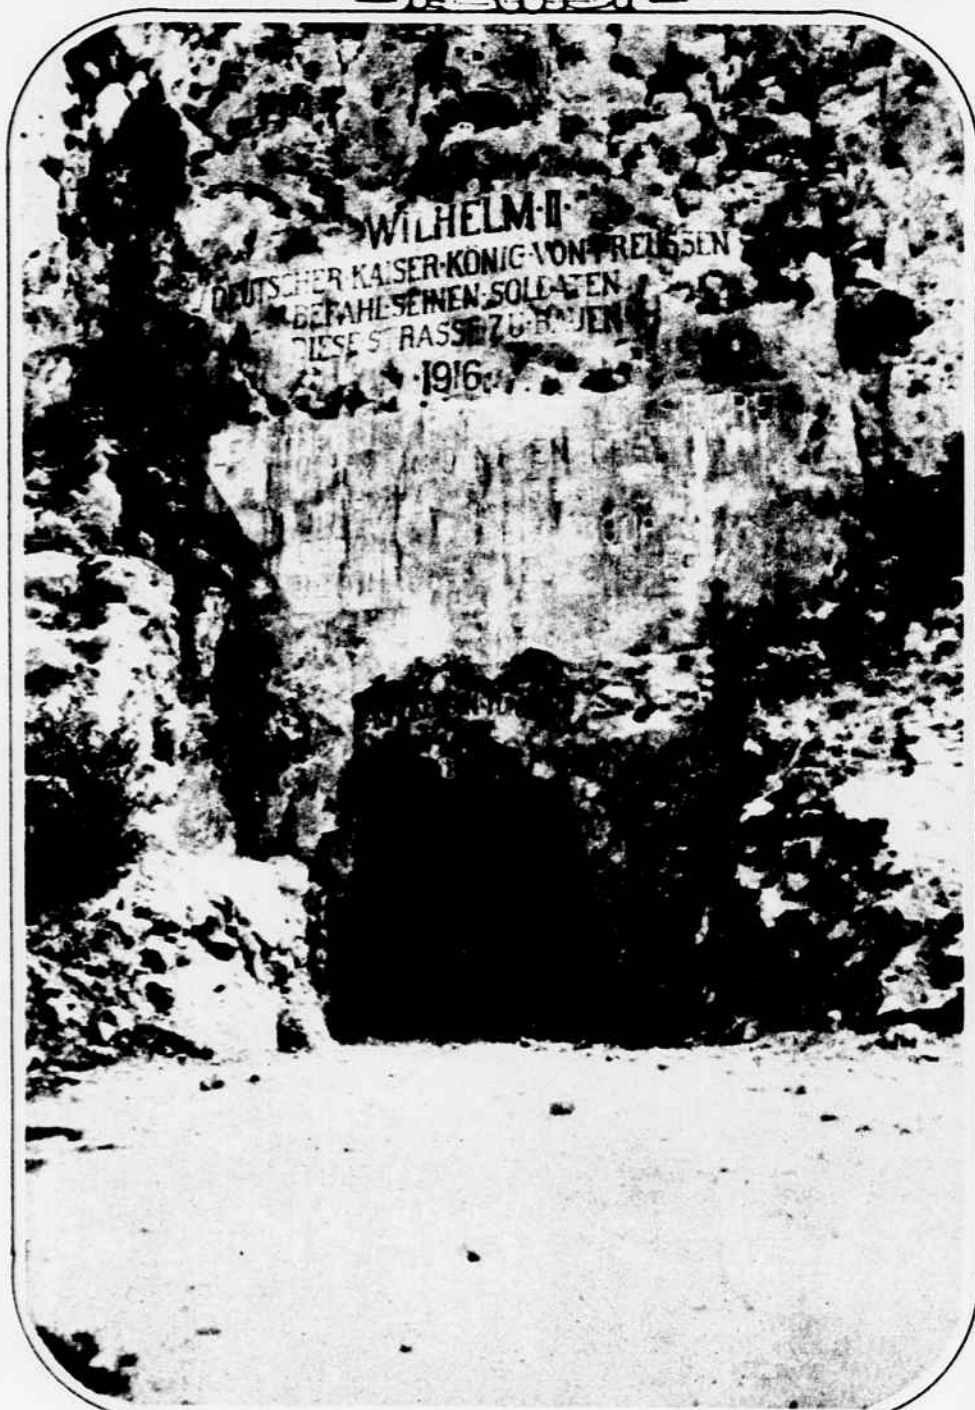

Queen Mary of England is awarded a degree of doctor of civil law at Oxford. Dressed in cap and gown, she is walking beside Lord Curzon in the procession. Princess Mary behind.

Wide World photo

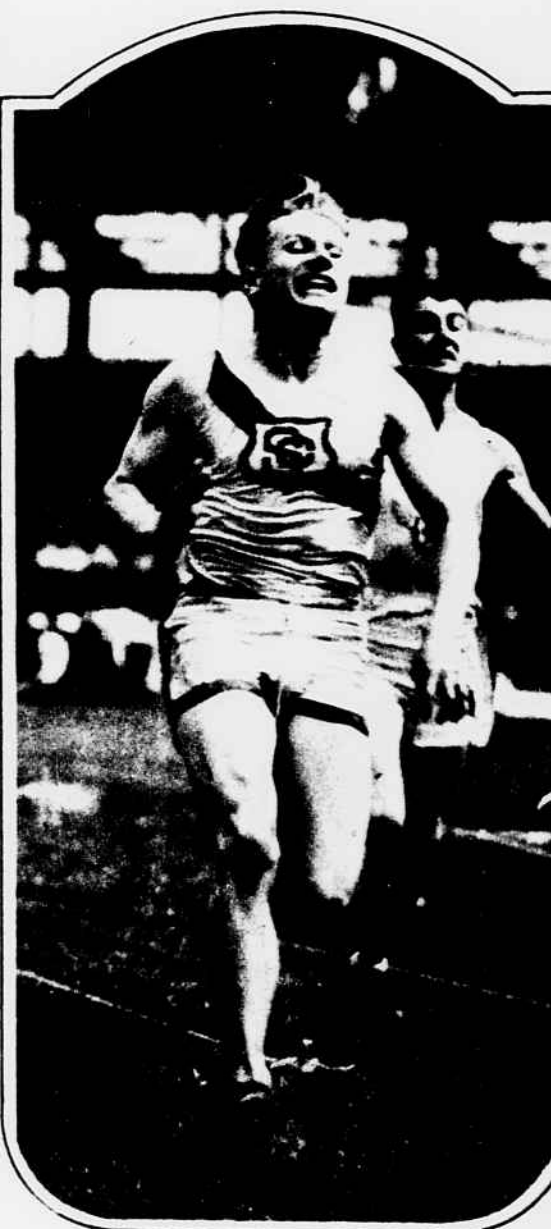

Dublin mourns as six Sinn Feiners are executed at Mountjoy Prison. The Irish sympathizers gathered outside the prison and joined in silent prayer.

Underwood & Underwood

Tunnel built by Von Mackensen's troops in Serbia, with this inscription, "William II, German kaiser and King of Prussia, ordered his troops to build this tunnel, 1916." The following was added by the French soldiers: "The Gen. Franchet d'Esperay, commander in chief of the allied army in the orient, ordered his troops to chase the boche, 1918."

Wide World photo

Charles Paddock, University of California sprinter, breaking the world record for 220 yards at Berkeley, Calif. His time was 0.204-5, two-fifths of a second faster than the old mark.

International Film Service

Sir Harry Lauder, Scotch comedian, performs for the benefit of a London hospital. His stunt consists of balancing himself on a foot ball before the kick-off in a foot ball game between actors and newspaper men.

Wide World photo

A new photograph of Miss Mary O. Wallace, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Wallace.

National Photo Co.

Miss Clare Boothe of Greenwich, Conn. (at right), who was voted the most beautiful girl on the Riviera during the past winter. Miss Boothe and her mother, Mrs. A. C. Boothe (at left), are now in London.

Underwood & Underwood